TO HEAR BEDWELL APPEAL

KENTUCKY STATE RACING COMMISSION WILL HAVE MEETING ON SATURDAY.

Several Hundred Horses Summering at Churchill Downs and Douglas Park—Racing Gossip from Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., July 13.—Chairman E. F. Clay has called a meeting of the Kentucky State Racing Commission for Saturday morning next at Lexington, when several important matters pertaining to racing in Kentucky will be taken up. Chief among these are the appeals of owners H. G. Bedwell and Kay Spence from the recent rulings of the Latonia officials in connection with the doping of the horses Nadzu and Charlie Hill. Messrs. Bedwell and Spence have notified the commission that they will be present in person, with their attorneys, at Saturday's meeting.

John Marklein, who lost his trainer's license early in the spring at Lexington through the in-and-out running of the horse W. A. Leach was here yesterday in consultation with a local attorney, who will endeavor to secure the Cincinnati horseman a reopening of the case. The Saturday meeting of the Kentucky State Racing Commission, Secretary Bidwell thinks the meeting of the commission will be about as lengthy a session as that body has ever held, as, in addition to the Marklein, Bedwell and Spence petitions, the managers of the various Kentucky tracks will be after fall dates. Applications for dates must be filed thirty days before the opening day of the proposed race meeting. Horsemen now idle at Douglas Park, Churchill Downs, Latonia and the Kentucky Association course at Lexington are hoping that the powers that be will decide to resume racing in Kentucky the coming fall, not later than the first or second Saturday in September.

Many of the horses that raced at Latonia have arrived here to remain throughout the summer. During July and August of last year hardly a dozen horses were quartered at Churchill Downs and Douglas Park, but this year between 350 and 400 horses will summer at the two Louisville tracks. H. G. Bedwell is the only owner who anticipated shipping some of his string here who will not send any horses for the present to either of the local tracks. Until the Kentucky State Racing Commission acts on his appeal from the recent decision against him, the Colorado turfman's horses will remain at Latonia.

William Gerst was here a day or two ago after having looked over some extensive improvements he has been making in the way of buildings on his Tennessee farm. He has several promising yearlings he expects to have sent to Cumberland Park to be broken soon, and when trainer George Ham returns west they will go under his care. On the closing day at Latonia the crack three-year-old, Donau, showed in his race a flash of his speed, so Mr. Gerst consented to let trainer Ham take him east with the other horses. The Kentucky Derby winner never looked better, but he was recently very sluggish in his work. Ham thinks a change of scene may restore his form, but if he continues to act badly he will not bring him to Churchill Downs next fall, but ship him to the Tennessee farm to continue his training. Gerst says Mexico looks so inviting the coming winter that he will likely send a bunch of horses to Juarez to race instead of wintering his string at Nashville as he did last year. What horses go to Juarez will be in charge of Ham. Messrs. Gerst and Hollie have been making some arrangements for the coming fall, as their home-raised youngsters are not sufficient in number to satisfy the requirements.

Among the recent arrivals at Churchill Downs and Douglas Park were trainer P. Coyne with George J. Long's string, trainer W. C. Westmoreland with the get of The Commander and Lord Eberling, and according to report are the most likely crop of foals ever raised at Edenwood Farm. Lon Jones, who shipped Tony W. and his other horses here from Latonia over a week ago, is also preparing to take up a number of yearlings at an early date.

J. U. Strode, general manager of the Tampa Racing Association, was in the city a few hours yesterday and talked freely on the proposed new track at Pensacola, Fla., which he will manage the coming winter. He said that by the middle of the coming month he would announce the program of a thirty-days meeting to precede the winter racing season at Tampa. There will be only sixty days of racing at Tampa the coming winter, but horsemen who follow the Strode circuit will have a season of 120 days' racing, as Pensacola will in 1911 hold an early spring meeting of thirty days, following the wind-up at Tampa. So, with Jacksonville and San Francisco in full blast, and a $500,000 meeting at Juarez for 100 days, horsemen have a good winter before them. Barney Schreiber said a few days ago at Latonia that he was not so sure that Los Angeles would not give a race meeting the coming winter of brief duration. He said that when he left California the tendency was in that direction. The Missouri turfman has a farm in California at which he has a band of mares and several stallions. He thinks now that he will let Jack Atkin do his first stud duty in California and retain Nealon for home use at Woodlands Farm.

The purchasers of Arrow Swift, Darknight, Jacobite, Plantland and Westbury, which were sold at Latonia last week by Dr. G. W. Carmack, owing to his suspension by the Canadian Racing Associations, have been notified of their re-instatement, as the governing body of that association is satisfied that the sale was a legitimate transfer of all interests so far as the suspended turfman is concerned. The telegram Dr. Carmack received notifying him of the action of the Canadian Racing Associations was a surprise to that horseman, who came to Latonia from Toronto with no knowledge of being in bad repute with the governing body of the turf in Canada.

Dr. Carmack thinks that the action against him was the result of a charge filed with the Canadian Racing Associations that he had connections with a tipping bureau.

STRICT REGULATIONS IN FORCE.

New York, July 13.—A strict interpretation of the Court of Appeals decision covering oral betting permits the display of odds and the settlement of wagers. The New York racing associations are following the spirit of the law so closely, however, that the display of prices is prohibited by the race track detectives, while settlements cannot be made until the next day.

THIRTY LEADING MONEY-WINNING HORSES

Last year's Futurity winner, Sweep, is well in the lead of the money-winning horses of 1910. Unfortunately, this good son of Ben Brush is said to be the possessor of quite infirm forelegs, and if this be true he may not be able to add greatly to his present comfortable total. Next to him is the fast, game and staying handicap horse, Olambala, with a reputation, well earned, of being a high-class racer and a great bargain to his owner, R. T. Wilson, Jr. Mr. Belmont's Rock Sand two-year-old, Footprint, is third in the list with a total of money won but slightly less than Olambala's. The foregoing, together with Round the World, Babler and King James, are the only horses of the year that have won $10,000 or more, and the thirty leaders and their earnings to date are:

CONDENSED HISTORY OF THE MONTAUK STAKES

The second horse to win the Montauk Stakes when the event was run at Brighton Beach was Commando, which was one of the best race horses that ever started. In his brief career of one year he started in nine races and won seven. The Montauk is not an event of extended history, but one that always was contested by good two-year-olds and, besides falling to Commando, was carried off by such other cracks as Eugenia Burch, Tongorder, Salvadore and Fair Play. The record of its running is as follows:

Year.	First.	Jockeys.	Wt.	Second.	Wt.	Third.	Wt.	Val.	Time.

APPLIES FOR SALT LAKE DATES.

San Francisco, Cal., July 13.—Secretary Percy W. Teed of the Pacific Jockey Club has received a communication from Manager Richard Dwyer, applying for dates for the Salt Lake City fall meeting. It is desired to have racing from September 17 to October 31. During that period seven days of the sport will be under the auspices of the Utah Fair Association and the remainder under the management of the Utah Jockey Club.

DALMATIAN EASY WINNER

HILDRETH COLT VANQUISHES FAUNTILEROTY AND THE TURK IN SEAGATE.

Hanbridge Makes Auspicious Eastern Debut by Taking Sprinting Handicap in Fastest Time of the Meeting.

New York, July 13.—S. C. Hildreth's Dalmatian was an easy winner of the Seagate Stakes at Yonkers today. He was opposed only by The Turk, for which R. F. Carman recently paid $7,500, and Mrs. James McLaughlin's Fauntleroy. While Dalmatian was always the favorite, there was a good demand for The Turk and Fauntleroy was not neglected. The Turk cut out the running to the backstretch, but could not shake off Dalmatian and Fauntleroy was never far away. On the turn out of the backstretch, McCahey rushed Fauntleroy to the front and opened a lead of two lengths, but turning for home Shilling took Dalmatian to him easily and it was no contest in the final furlong. Hildreth's colt winning by two lengths, while Fauntleroy beat The Turk a like distance for the place. The three-quarter-mile handicap went to George H. Holle's Hanbridge, the first horse to race under the Holle silks at this meeting, and the time, 1:11.3, marked the best three-quarters of the season. In this race Follie Levy repeated her recent crazy antics at the post and when the barrier was released she wheeled and would not break. After the race it was ordered that her entry be refused in future.

In the mile race for fillies and mares, the showing of Keep Moving was so far below her recent form that jockey Archibald was called into the stand after the finish and asked to explain his ride. He said that he had ridden to orders when he did not go to the front with the mare. O. A. Bianchi, owner of the mare, was sent for and in excuse said that the mare's knees had been bothering her and he thought she would have a better chance if not taken out to make the pace.

After Jupiter Joe had won the last race a stranger ran him up from $600 to $1,000, but he was bought in by W. G. Yanke.

A large shipment of horses left for Saratoga today. In the lot were those of August Belmont, in care of John Whalen; Richard T. Wilson, Jr.'s string, with trainer T. J. Healey in charge, Mrs. L. A. Livingston's with Matt Peakes in charge and several that Peter Winmer is training.

HORSEMEN EAGER FOR CHICAGO RACING.

Large Delegation Tarrying at Latonia in Hopes of Receiving Word to Ship Here.

Cincinnati, O., July 13.—Latonia track is at present sheltering about 250 horses whose owners are undecided as to their next shipping point. Favorable reports from Chicago regarding an early resumption of racing there are mostly responsible for keeping the horsemen here. Should word come during the next few days that the sport is to be resumed on the Chicago tracks in the near future, preparations will at once begin for the transfer of most of the horses now here to the Windy City. The probable revival of the sport in Chicago, together with the outcome of the Bodwell case, to be heard by the Kentucky State Racing Commission on Saturday next, is keeping the horsemen well supplied with topics for conversation. The general opinion among the horsemen is that the racing commission will not reverse the ruling of the Latonia judges, but may in Bedwell's case give him the privilege of disposing of his horses and lift the ban on them with their transfer. The Bedwell string at Latonia has a valuation of $50,000. J. Marklein shipped Pal and a two-year-old with the Thoil-McLemore consignment to Cheyenne, Wyo., for racing on the inter-mountain circuit.

The horses owned by A. Vogeler were sent to the Empire City track at Yonkers with the W. L. Lewis consignment. John Haehmeister, general manager at Latonia, left last night for Louisville and will return here in a few days to wind up the affairs of the Latonia track before going to New York to confer with M. J. Winn and others as to plans for the Kentucky fall meetings.

MORE AMERICAN SUCCESSES.

London, Eng., July 13.—August Belmont's Merry Task, b. c. 3, by Octagon—Merry Token, finished first in the race for the Zetland Plate, 500 sovereigns added, at a mile and a half, at Newmarket today. Decision was second and Sycamore third. There were seven starters. The July Handicap of 500 sovereigns for three-year-olds and upward, distance six furlongs of the Bunkery mile was won by H. P. Whilney's four-year-old colt, Persius, by Persianum—Urania. McIntyre was second and Scorseless third. Eight horses ran. A two-year-old selling stake was won by Lawrence Waterbury's Congo II., by Meddler—Reina. San Deux was second and Sir Knight third. There were ten starters.

PREDICTION ON EASTERN RACING.

"Stick a pin in the prediction that the Futurity will be run at Sheepshead Bay," said a well-posted racing man yesterday. "The Coney Island Jockey Club has three days, August 29, 30 and 31, to run at the Bay before the new Agnew-Perkins laws go into effect and whether it is decided to go on or not after that date, these days will be used according to schedule. If it is decided to quit on the first of September all the stakes arranged for the fall meeting at the Bay can be run off in three days to the exclusion of overnight events. If Sheepshead Bay closes on August 31, I have it on the best of authority that racing will go on elsewhere."—New York Sun.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Abbott, Milwaukee, Wis. The fee for a jockey's license was $25.

J. B. Chicago. Sorry cannot inform you, but do not possess the Countess sales for place.

J. A. S., Detroit, Mich. The parlay lost because it was a place parlay, and Foxy Mary ran third with place tickets in plenty sold on her.

S. E. C., Benton Harbor, Mich. Every ticket sold on the field was sold on your horse as well as the others bunched with him. If he had finished first the price paid would have been whatever the field tickets called for.

George Kay, Toronto, Ont. The figures are clear and actual in charts 90711 and 90714. There are no figures for other points than are specified in captions. The three-quarter record of 1:12.1 in Monday's entries for Jeanne d'Arc is correct. The 1:11.1 record is for the short three-quarters.

HAPPENINGS OF RACING IN ENGLAND.

A Rule Aimed at American Owners Repealed—Ulster

King's Rich Stake Win—General Statistics.

London, Eng., July 2.—At a meeting of the Jockey Club, held at Newmarket June 29, the motion of the stewards to omit the first paragraph of Rule 52, which reads: "No weight shall be allotted to a horse in a handicap until he has run three times in the United Kingdom," was put and carried. This is a repeal of the much-discussed rule adopted last year, which was in some quarters alleged to be aimed at horses from the United States. In practice it was found to be a practical exclusion of the French horses also. This was a result not aimed at and brought about its repeal. It was an unimportant measure in the first place and everyone concerned is pleased with the action of the Jockey Club in quietly abandoning it.

The German Derby was run at Hamburg Sunday, June 26, and resulted in an easy victory for the Royal Gratz Stud's chestnut colt, Orient, a son of Buena Vista—Oily. Herr P. Pakheiser's Star was second and Herr C. Von Lang Puchhoff's Kalchas third. Orient was badly beaten in the Austrian Derby a few weeks previously, but had subsequently redeemed his reputation by defeating Fervor, the best older horse in training in Germany, in the rich Great Hansa Prize, and was a 7 to 10 favorite for the German Derby.

Lemberg and Charles O'Malley were well beaten in the Grand Prix de Paris, to the great consternation of their confident backers and admirers. Charles O'Malley never made much of a showing, but up to a mile and a half Lemberg appeared as likely to win as anything, then was plainly beaten directly afterwards. The going was very heavy and holding, and this, together with the journey to Paris, may be held accountable for his defeat. What makes English critics certain the form of the race is all wrong is the fact that Bronzino was third, it being well known that Lemberg is immeasurably his superior. In the meantime the French are having a good time over the race and averring that the English horses are deficient in stamina. Lemberg, accompanied by his stable companion, Avico, has arrived at Manton from France, looking none the worse for his journey.

Our American cousins have, as all the world knows, a great reputation for hustling, and rarely have we had a better example of their rush methods than that afforded by the importation of eighteen yearlings bred by Clarence H. Mackay at Lexington, which were sold the evening of Tuesday, June 28. Despatched from Kentucky on the thirteenth, they reached Newmarket at half past three Tuesday afternoon, and the first lot was under the hammer two and a half hours later. This was certainly running it pretty fine. In the circumstances one would naturally have expected the youngsters to be travel-weary and in anything but good saleable condition. As a matter of fact, however, they looked so spick and span that they might have had a month's rest after their long journey. There was a big muster round the ring while they were being sold, and for many of the lots the bidding was brisk. It is to be noted that the majority of them have unexceptionable English pedigrees, and this no doubt helped the sale, especially in the case of the fillies. There were several buyers in attendance who hoped to secure some of the lots for fifty guineas or so, but they soon realized that there were very few going at that figure.

The two top-priced lots were a filly and a colt by Meddler, and both were bought by H. J. King, the filly, out of a Hampton mare, making 250 guineas, and the colt, out of a Carbine mare, 400 guineas. The filly is very racing-like, if a trifle light of bone. Mr. Gilpin secured a half-sister to White Brute, for 250 guineas, and Major Roberts purchased a sharp-looking filly, by Meddler, out of a Donovon mare, for 300 guineas. Frank Harding was the successful bidder for two very promising fillies by Meddler, and a colt by the same sire went to Lord Villiers. Altogether, it was quite a satisfactory sale. Indeed, wonderful, seeing that buyers had practically no opportunity of examining the "goods" beforehand.

Madame Cheremeteff, the owner of Nuage, winner of the Grand Prix de Paris, is the wife of a great tea merchant in Russia. She has been running horses with considerable success in France for several years, as has her brother, M. Kometzoff.

The Atlanta Stakes, decided at Sandown Park on Saturday, June 25, provided a thrilling finish between the Oaks winner (Rosedrop) and Mangalini, the former gaining the verdict in the last stride by a margin of not more than two or three inches. The race was contested in a rainstorm of quite an extraordinary character, and all the riders drew about four pounds overweight upon returning to the scale. In the circumstances they were passed by the stewards present.

Lord Shrewsbury is getting together a string of horses which are to be trained by Goby, at Badminton House, Epsom.

The Newmarket First July meeting provided some good racing, quietly conducted with small attendance, as usual. The principal race of the meeting, the Princess of Wales Stakes at a mile and a half, was won by Lister King in easy fashion. It was formerly one of the "ten thousand pounders," but its value has been reduced greatly. Even at that it is still well worth winning and realized $14,750 to Lister King's owner. The July Stakes, the big race of the meeting for two-year-olds, was won by Leopold de Rothschild's promising St. Frusquin colt, St. Anton. It is worth noting that this race was founded as long ago as 1786.

Porphyrio, the first foal of that good mare, Fair, made his debut in the July Stakes. As a yearling he cost Sir Ernest Cassel $14,500. In make, shape and color he is a typical Gallic, but as yet he is very backward. Though he did not show with any remarkable prominence in his first race, his style of galloping is suggestive of his one day making a race horse.

The new method of arranging the bookmakers at Sandown Park appears to be an excellent one, and worthy of a trial at other race meetings where the enclosures are frequently very congested. The plan is to divide them into small squares, and thus provide intersecting avenues, which greatly facilitates the movements of commission agents between different points of the rings. The spaces are marked out with chalk lines.

Mr. Fairlie is not likely to be displaced from his lead in the list of winning owners, almost doubling his closest competitor and having such redoubtable money-gamblers as Bayardo and Lemberg ready to further advance his fortunes. Winkipop has served young DeWaldorf Astor so well that he has passed Lord Rosebery and is now second in the list. H. P. Whitney's stable has almost doubled its earnings and he is now ninth and well in advance of many of England's leading turfmen. To date those owners whose horses have won $10,000 or more are the following:

The Derby winner, Lemberg, is at present safely first in the list of chief money-winning horses, with the speedy filly, Winkipop, a good second. TACTICS OF OLD-TIME JOCKEYS.

Characteristics of Well-Known Riders of Other Days
Treated in an Interesting Vein.

The action of the stewards of the Coney Island Jockey Club in suspending jockey Dugan for rough riding was being discussed by a group of horsemen a few days ago when a veteran racing man said: "It would not have been necessary for the stewards to take any action in Dugan's case if we had a rider of the lead from O'Connor type in the saddle. In this country at the present time that boy took good care of all those who attempted liberties with him in a race and I shall never forget the surprise Tommy Burns, then in the heyday of his prowess as a jockey, got at the Fair Grounds course at New Orleans one afternoon."

Burns was riding for John W. Schorr, the Memphis brewer, at that time and was winning more races than any two other jockeys at the course until O'Connor came along. In the race to which I refer Burns was up on the favorite and when O'Connor moved up at the head of the stretch and challenged him the lead Burns were riding today Dugan did and endeavored to get a leg lock on him.

This trick gives a marked advantage in a fighting finish, and O'Connor called to Burns when the Canadian tried for the lock that he must not carry him out any farther. Burns paid no attention, but continued his foul tactics until at the brick barn about a furlong from home O'Connor's mount was within a few feet of the outside fence. Rising in his stirrups he rained half a dozen blows upon Burns' head and shoulders with the short riding whip he carried and then sat down and rode a half-raising finish that landed him in front by a neck at the wire.

The stewards of the meeting promptly called both riders into the stand and demanded an explanation. O'Connor pleaded that his life was in danger and that he only used his whip as a last resort, because he believed that he would be thrown over the fence onto the shell road ten feet beneath, the track being much higher than the road about it.

The stewards reprimanded both boys. Burns for rough riding and O'Connor for taking the law into his own hands. That was the only time that Burns went up against O'Connor, and you can bet if boys of this type of riding were riding today Dugan would have had a trimming long ago.

Fitzpatrick could take care of himself too in the old days," broke in a listener, "and so could Andy McCarthy and Johnny Spellman. McLaughlin wasn't a rough rider, but he was a bluffer and in a race frightened most of the boys with whom he came in contact."

I'll never forget one time at Benning that McLaughlin got up against the wrong boy to frighten. He was riding old man Morris' Favor in one of the spring stakes and the big bay horse was a tremendous favorite and carrying a heavy commission for Mike Dwyer, one of McLaughlin's employers. Favor was the top weight and naturally Jimmy waited with him. Rounding the upper turn there were three horses ahead of him.

Look out there, boy," called McLaughlin, evidently expecting the jockey on the horse next the rail to pull out and beat him through the field.

Now it happened that the horse was Eolian, owned by the late A. J. Cassatt, the Pennsylvania Railway magnate, and the jockey was Willie Martin, now a trainer and for many years one of America's best riders. Martin, then a beginner at the game, paid no attention to McLaughlin's employer, and heeded his efforts on Eolian, then a comparatively unknown three-year-old.

By the time that McLaughlin made up his mind to go to the outside in the run home Martin, who had shouted back something uncomplimentary when the fence onto the shell road ten feet beneath, the track being much higher than the road about it. McCarthy, who was always truculent, having trouble with the turf authorities or with his fellow riders almost constantly, lost his life on the track at Morris Park. He was riding a crazy gray mare called Little Nell and she ran away with him and crashed into one of the many fences which crossed the Eclipse course when the circular course was in use.

McCarthy's quarrels with starter Caldwell were spectacular and almost constant. They appeared to understand each other and when the starting point was distant enough from the grandstand so that their conversation could not be heard by the spectators the language was sometimes vitriolic and always acrimonious. Such goings on between starter and jockey disappeared long ago, but when Caldwell was at his profession he had numerous battles at the post.

McCarthy and Bergen, I guess, were his particular pets in that line, and the latter could be quite as exasperating as McCarthy when he was in the humor, and that seemed to be all the time. He reminded me of the boy who boasted that he had the most even-tempered man in the world for a father—always angry.

Some of Bergen's witticisms and sarcasms are famous. Old Larry Hart owned a three-year-old named Duke of Anster that nobody thought of more than very ordinary selling plate class. The public that followed the horses those days was astonished one day to find the Duke entered in a race against several of the best horses in training, among them the redoubtable Tenny, one of the best three-year-olds we have ever had in this country. Tenny was charged with the race, and Bergen over to a remote corner of the paddock at Sheep-head Bay to give him instructions.

Now, Marty," he said, "lay wide Tenny till ye hit the head of the stretch and then come on with him and ye'll have it all to yourself."

All right, said the jockey, with a near a smile on his face as he ever permitted to show there.

When the head of the stretch was reached the Duke was fifty yards behind Tenny and he was almost twice as far away at the wire. Barnes was in the saddle on Tenny, and when the starting flag was hoisted after the race the jockey said: "Oh, Mr. Hart, Barnes wouldn't throw me a towline and I couldn't follow orders."

One day while Mr. Pettigill was starting the horses at Oakley, the handsome course near Cincinnati, the Duke of Anster, who was then a yearling, was riding a fractions two-year-old filly. The starter, whose patience had stood a long strain, finally shouted:

Bergen, bring that filly up in line here."

Honest, Mr. Pet," replied Bergen as he snatched at the filly's tail in an endeavor to turn her around, this is my bicycle."

Bergen rode for Corrigan, you remember, for a year or so. Their contract was unique. There were no written articles of agreement between them.

When somebody suggested that there should be a written contract Corrigan said for Bergen and in his characteristic way remarked:

Now see here, Bergen, when your riding doesn't suit me I'll tell you so, and when you're not satisfied with me you can tell me so. That'll be contract enough."

That suits me, boss," was Bergen's reply. "It was only a few days after his engagement that Corrigan started a horse that he was pretty sweet on, and he told the jockey before the race that he had a lot of money at stake. The horse was beaten badly and Corrigan rubbed his big aquiline nose in perplexity. Before he could ask Bergen what the trouble was the rider drawled:

Say, boss, you made a mistake. That was the buggy horse you bet on."

Corrigan was disarmed for the moment. Such nature as Corrigan's and Bergen's had no more chance to mix than oil and water, and they soon parted.

That Spellman was rough and tough enough," said another member of the group. "He knew as much about the fine points of horsemanship as anybody riding thirty years ago, and when he was betting his own money and riding his own horse he was a terror. Before he could ask Bergen what the trouble was the rider drawled:

In a fist fight he was easily the champion of the jockeys, and he was always ready with either hands or feet. His company got him into trouble, and he lost his life as the result of a midnight brawl on Sixth avenue where the white lights were thickest at the junction of that thoroughfare and Thirty-Second street.

He was perhaps the heaviest better among the jockeys of his day and the wagers he made at times would stagger the turf authorities of the present day. Five thousand dollars wasn't an unusual wager for Spellman when he thought he was right and if Jimmy Kelly was alive he could tell you of some large winnings scored by the natty jockey. One went as much for his clothes as any man in New York.

Talking of clothes," remarked one of the crowd, "the old-time jockeys were better dressers than the topnotchers of today. McLaughlin, Garrison, the Claytons, Simms and others were turned out like fashion plates. I took O'Connor a couple of years to dress even fairly well and I remember meeting him once crossing the field at Gravesend after he had won four races. He was at the time under contract to the Featherstone-Bromley confederacy and was earning $20,000 a year at least. He had on an old gray sweater, a pair of trousers that he had swiped would have discarded and he had one shoe and a slipper on his feet. I stopped him and asked him why he was not more particular about his personal appearance."

I couldn't ride any better if I had better clothes, could I?" he said in reply, and I was forced to admit the truth of his remark.

But the next year he blossomed out and when he went to New Orleans in the autumn his wardrobe would satisfy the most exacting taste. He had silk pajamas and checked suits. Of the former he said that it took him some time to get used to them, as they were so slippery he fell out of bed a number of times when he first wore them. He had one check suit so good that you could hear it around the corner.

Slack, who was then little better than an apprentice, was a great chum of O'Connor. He looked with longing eyes on Wink's checks, and this fond suit in particular was the finest thing in the way of
